DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-8 and 13-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Eckardt et al, 4,739,586. Please refer to figures 1 and 2. Further, as the grinding tool grinds all the edges of the shaped glass workpiece, there are different contact zones between the tool and workpiece.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 9, 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Eckardt et al, '586 in view of Kalb US006712061B1. '586 discloses the use of a gearing system driven by a servomotor, the gearing system communicating with and extending between the coolant head and a slide on the machine for effecting the movement of the toll relative to the workpiece along an axis of motion, but does not disclose that a cable system can be used to rotate the coolant head relative to the grinding tool. As evidenced by '061, column 6, lines 22-55, it is known to move a component about an arc through the use of a cable system. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to have provided '586 with the cable system of '061, figure 1, to provide a precision guide for a component which is durable and manufactured at a low cost, column 4, lines 67 through column 5, lines 4.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claim 10 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art of record does not disclose positioning means for changing the position of the at least one coolant nozzle and coolant header comprising a cable system having a pair of cables, the coolant header having first and second ends with one of the pair of cables being attached to the first end and the other of the pair of cables being attached to the second end. The closest art of record, to '061, teaches using a single looped cable 490 that is hand driven to index the component about the arc formed by 470, 480.

Conclusion

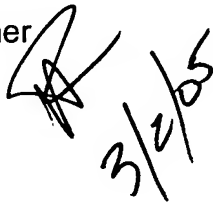

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Other similar cable drive devices are cited of interest.
